CENTRAL LIBRARY'S CALIFORNIA HISTORY ROOM REOPENING DELAYED

The Central Library's California History Room, soon to be renamed the San Joaquin Valley Heritage and Genealogy Center, will reopen to the public on July 1st. The room was scheduled to reopen on Monday, June 17th; however, renovations have been delayed by a few routine snags.

The room, which holds the Library system's local history books and historical records, has been closed for six weeks in order to expand the square footage and reconfigure shelving to allow for an upcoming preservation project.
